Master’s Thesis, 660-990 (2 credits). The MA thesis requirement provides students with the opportunity to spend a semester writing an original document under the supervision of a faculty member. Typically students choose to revisit a research paper created for a previous course with the goal to develop and expand upon their previous effort. In consultation with the MA thesis advisor, students may also use the opportunity to revise original material for a presentation at a professional meeting. The finished document should demonstrate the student's ability to carry out original historical and interpretative research. Students are free to choose the faculty member with whom they would like to work knowing that faculty members may be unavailable for various reasons. Students are expected to consult with their thesis advisor on due dates for stages of revisions and especially for the final draft as well as to discuss other parameters of the project such as length and how best to share their completed work with the rest of the musicology area. Students are advised that failure to complete the thesis by the agreed upon due date will result in an incomplete, and that the future removal of that incomplete may require additional semesters of tuition and may jeopardize receiving the MA degree in a timely fashion.
