

Mead Witter School of Music

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

Graduate Funding in the School of Music

Graduate students in the School of Music are primarily supported by tuition waiver-granting appointments in the form of an assistantship or fellowship. Graduate students may also receive small scholarships in lieu of a full graduate appointment.

Eligibility

If your application is submitted by December 1, you will automatically be eligible for all of the funding appointments described on the next page. Recipients of graduate appointments must enroll full-time and maintain satisfactory progress in their degree program, including a cumulative GPA of 3.25.

Timeline

There is no additional application for graduate funding. For certain TA positions, you will receive an invitation to submit a special letter of interest after you have been admitted. While initial funding offers are made in March, positions often open up throughout the spring.

Benefits

All graduate appointments provide eligibility for health insurance and a tuition waiver for the duration of the guarantee. If you are offered a graduate appointment, your offer letter will contain detailed information regarding the rights and responsibilities associated with your position. Multi-year funding guarantees are possible based on the availability of the funds and the desires of the student's area.

Frequently Asked Questions

What are my chances of receiving funding for my degree?

Funding is very competitive and depends primarily on your ranking within the area of study. Normally, we admit over 100 students and are able to offer about 20-30 funded positions. This number varies depending upon T.A. vacancies and fellowship resources in a given year. To see the most recent distribution of appointments, check out the "Admission Statistics" on our website: music.wisc.edu/graduate-admissions

Which positions are available in 2024?

Most of the appointments described above will be available to a certain extent, although the specific number of opportunities depends greatly on variable factors (such as enrollment trends, faculty grants, and the stock market) and the rotation of current graduate students out of existing appointments.

How can I increase my chances of being offered a funding appointment?

Start a relationship with your preferred faculty member(s). Send an email to introduce yourself and explain your interest in UW-Madison. Set up a meeting and/or sample lesson and inquire about funding opportunities in the area. In your Statement of Purpose, express your desire for funding and describe your qualifications. Most importantly, have a stellar application and, if applicable, play an excellent audition.

When will I hear about funding?

If you are selected for the first round of offers, you will receive your offer no later than March 20. If you are not selected for the first round, you may still receive an offer at any time throughout the spring. Our ability to make secondary offers depends upon how many students accept our first offers. Like other schools, students who are offered funding in the first round will have until April 15 to accept our offer. This is a very dynamic process, and positions often open up at the last minute. Rest assured that we will contact you the moment we are able to offer you anything!

If I am offered funding, am I guaranteed funding in the future?

Many funding appointments come with multi-year guarantees. You may be offered a multi-year guarantee composed of varying appointments with different stipends and duties. Some students are offered 1-year appointments with no guarantee of future funding, depending on the needs and resources of each area. In all cases, your offer letter will clearly state the number of years guaranteed.

If I am NOT offered funding as an incoming student, will I be eligible next year?

Yes, all current students are eligible for funding as long as they remain enrolled in graduate-level courses and are in good academic standing. Each spring, continuing students are invited to apply for open TA positions in Musicology and Theory. Students who have excelled in their Musicology and Theory coursework will be seriously considered.

What about student loans and other financial aid?

The School of Music does not process student loans or financial aid. We only offer teaching assistantships and fellowships, as well as small scholarships ($1,000 – $5,000) applied as a credit to your tuition account. To receive major financial aid or student loans, you will need to complete the FAFSA process through the federal government. We are not involved in this process, and we make our decisions independently of any other aid you may receive.
